Household and Family Characteristics: March 1992

INTRODUCTION AND HIGHLIGHTS

This annual report contains detailed demographic data for the Nation on households and families for March 1992 and offers a look at how the composition and characteristics of households and families have changed compared with those of a decade or two ago. The current estimates are based on data from the Annual Demographic Supplement to the Current Population Survey (CPS). The 1990 Census of Population and Housing would be the best source of similar data for subnational geographic areas (states, counties, metropolitan areas, cities and towns).

The data in this report for 1992 are based on survey results inflated to independent national population controls by age, race, sex, and Hispanic origin. These population controls are based on results of the 1980 census carried forward to 1992. The estimates in this report will, therefore, differ from estimates that would have been obtained using 1990 census results brought forward to 1992. Population controls incorporating the 1990 census results will be phased in and used for survey estimation beginning in 1993.

Some of the highlights of the topics discussed in this year's report include:

The total number of households in March 1992 was about 95.7 million ($\pm 468,000$), representing an increase of 1.4 million ($\pm 663,000$) compared with the total for 1 year ago.

Thus far in the 1990's, the annual net increase in the number of households has averaged 1.2 million ($\pm 331,000$) per year, which is not much different than the 1.3 million ($\pm 64,000$) per year average for the 1980's, but is far below the 1.7 million ($\pm 60,000$) annual average for the 1970's.

Married-couple families accounted for more than 55 (± 0.4) percent of all households in 1992, but a majority 53 (± 0.5) percent of these married couples did not have any children under 18 present in the home.

Persons living alone accounted for about 25 (± 0.3) percent of all households in 1992, but their numbers increased much more rapidly in the 1970's than they have since.

Although the average household size in 1992 of 2.62 (± 0.01) persons was significantly smaller than a decade or so ago, there has not been a significant change in the average since 1989.

The increase in the number of single parents, from 3.8 million ($\pm 125,000$) in 1970 to 10.5 million ($\pm 225,000$) in 1992, has been phenomenal, but it is important to note that the number of single parents rose at a much higher rate during the 1970's, than since that time.

Single parents accounted for 30 (± 0.6) percent of all one and two-parent situations combined in 1992, compared with 13 (± 0.4) percent in 1970.

The single parent proportion in 1992 was 62 (± 1.5) percent among Black family groups with children in the home, versus 24 (± 0.6) percent among Whites.

Most of the data in this report are estimates based on sample surveys and are subject to sampling variability since the estimates are not based on a complete census enumeration of the population. We advise caution when comparing differences in estimates that are based on a small number of cases, especially if the difference is small.

The values shown in parentheses represent the 90-percent confidence interval, which is the standard used by the Census Bureau for the comparison of statistics based on sample surveys. All of the statements in this report meet this requirement. See appendix B for a more detailed discussion of sampling error and how it may affect the data.

GROWTH IN THE NUMBER OF HOUSEHOLDS

Estimates based on the Current Population Survey indicate that there were 95.7 million households in the United States in March of 1992. This represents a net increase of about 1.4 million compared with the household total for March 1991 (see table A-2).

There is considerable variation from one year to the next in the amount of growth in the number of households. For that reason alone, if no other, too much emphasis should not be placed on one-year comparisons. Between 1970 and 1980, the annual net increase in the number of households averaged about 1.7 million per year. From 1980 to 1990, the average increase was significantly lower, about 1.3 million per year. During the first two years of the 1990's, the average increase (1.2 million) has not been significantly different from the relatively low rate of increase of the 1980's.

Prior to 1980, the slowest rate of growth in the number of households was for the decade of the 1930's.¹ The Census Bureau's household projections for the 1990's (Series C) indicate that the slow rate of household increase characteristic of the 1980's may be expected to continue for at least the period of years remaining in this century.²

CHANGING COMPOSITION OF HOUSEHOLDS

The term "household" in these data does not refer to the physical structure or house in which people live. In this discussion, a household refers to the person or group of people who occupy a particular housing unit. The number of occupied housing units will equal the number of households.

The Census Bureau identifies households as being either families or nonfamilies. A family household is comprised of at least two persons related to one another by birth, marriage, or adoption. One of those persons must be the householder, who in most cases is the individual that owns or rents the housing unit. A nonfamily household is either a householder living alone or a householder not related to any of the other people living in the household. A few nonfamily households contain groups of people related to one another, but not related to the householder (i.e., so-called unrelated subfamilies).

Family households. Most households are family households. That has been a fact historically and is not likely to change anytime in the foreseeable future. However, families do not account for as large a share of households as they once did. The proportion of households represented by families has fallen from 81 percent in 1970 to 70 percent in 1992, an 11 percent point drop (table A).

The Census Bureau identifies three basic types of family households. In 1992, there were 52.5 million married-couple families, 11.7 million families with female householders (no husband present) and 3.0 million families with male householders (no wife present).

Married-couple families accounted for more than half (55 percent) of all households in 1992 (figure 1). A majority of these married couples, however, did not have any children under 18 present in the home. These couples either had not yet had any children (but will do so in the future), were "empty nesters" whose children had grown up and left home, were couples who chose to remain child-free, or were unable to have children. The last year in which married-couple families with children under 18 present in the home outnumbered those without children present was 1981.

There were 9.7 million married-couple families with two children present in the home in 1992. This mythical or idealized traditional family represented about 10 percent of all households in the Nation. It's often thought that there were many more of these families not so long ago. Contrary to popular impression, there were actually 1.7 million fewer of these two-parent/two-child family households in 1970 than in 1992. However, they represented a bit larger portion of all households in 1970 (13 percent versus 10 percent in 1992).

The number of larger families comprised of two parents with three or more children at home (under age 18) has declined from 9.3 million households in 1970 to 5.2 million in 1992. In proportionate terms, these families represented only about 5 percent of all households nationwide in 1992, down from 15 percent of the total in 1970.

About 15 percent of all households in 1992 were maintained by family householders with no husband or wife present. This represents an increase of about 4 percentage points over the corresponding proportion for 1970. About 8.3 million, or 57 percent of the 14.7 million families not maintained by married couples included at least one of the householder's own children under age 18 among their members. As one might expect, this was much more likely to be the case if the householder was a female rather than a male. About 7.0 million, or 60 percent of the 11.7 million families with female householders (no husband present) had at least one child present. By comparison, only 1.3 million or 42 percent of the 3.0 million families with male householders (no wife present) included any children.

There were about 13.6 million family households with one child under 18 present in 1992. This was larger than the number with either two children or with three or more children in the home. Children in families with one child present are not to be confused with "only children," since they may have siblings who are either grown or who are living elsewhere. The number of one-child families was 4.3 million higher in 1992 than in 1970, but the proportion of all households that they represented in 1992 (14 percent) was only slightly lower than at the earlier point in time (15 percent).

Nonfamily households. About 30 percent of households were nonfamily households in 1992, compared with 19 percent of all households in 1970. However, the number of nonfamily households was increasing at a much more rapid annual rate during the 1970's (5.7 percent), than during the 1980's (2.5 percent). Thus far during the 1990's, the rate of increase (2.2 percent) has not been significantly lower than during the 1980's.

The vast majority of nonfamily households were comprised of people living alone. About 24.0 million, or 84 percent of all 28.5 million nonfamily households in 1992 were people living alone. This proportion is about 7 percentage points below that for 1970, when about 91 percent of nonfamily households were persons living alone.

One-person households (i.e., live alones) accounted for one quarter of all households in the Nation in 1992. Although the number of these households continues to increase, the annual rate of increase was much higher in the 1970's than it has been since.

About 9.6 million or 40 percent of all persons living alone in 1992 were men. Although men constitute a minority of the population living alone, their portion has grown compared with 1970 when they represented just 33 percent of the one-person households.

HOUSEHOLD POPULATION

There were an estimated 251.0 million persons residing in some type of household in 1992 (table B). The survey universe also included about 450,000 persons living in some type of group quarters such as group homes and rooming houses.

As people move through their life course, they are likely to experience living in a variety of different types of household living arrangements. We may be born into a married-couple family household, spend part of our childhood with a female family householder who is a single mother, form a nonfamily household and live alone for a time as a young adult before forming a family household of our own, and so on. Although an individual's household type will vary over time, a sizeable majority of the overall household population will be living in married-couple families at any particular point in time. This majority, however, has shrunk by 14 percentage points from 82 percent of the household population in 1970 to 68 percent of the 1992 total.

If one considers actual numbers, rather than percentages, there were 170.4 million persons who comprised the 52.5 million married-couple families in 1992. The second largest segment of the household population was the 36.3 million people in family households with female householders (no husband present).

About 34.9 million persons were in nonfamily households in 1992, accounting for about 14 percent of the household population of 251.0 million. The 28.5 million housing units occupied by nonfamily households, however, were about 30 percent of all 95.7 million households (table B). The unit of analysis (household population versus households/occupied housing units) determines the universe or base upon which the percentages are based. Nonfamily households account for a much larger portion of occupied housing units than of the total household population. This is mentioned to illustrate the importance of the unit of analysis in discussions about the changing distribution of types of households and the population living in them.

CHANGING HOUSEHOLD SIZE

Households come not only in a variety of types but also in various sizes. Household size has shown a general pattern of shrinkage in recent years (figure 2). Since 1970, the proportion of the largest households (i.e., those with five persons or more) has fallen from 21 percent to 10 percent of the total (table C). Medium sized households with three or four persons accounted for about one-third (33 percent) of households at both points in time. Finally, the smallest households, those comprised of only one or two persons have increased their share of the total from 46 percent in 1970 to 57 percent in 1992 (figure 3).

One-person households had a higher rate of increase than any other household size during the 1970's and 1980's. That rate of increase has, however, slowed dramatically in recent years as the age structure of the population has altered with the aging of the Baby Boom, as the divorce rate has stabilized, and as economic conditions have changed. The average annual rate of increase for one-person households fell substantially from a high of 5.2 percent per year during the 1970's, to 2.3 percent per year during the 1980's. The 1990's rate of 2.1 percent per year is not significantly different from the 1980's.

Overall, the average household size in 1992 was 2.62 persons per household, compared with 3.14 persons in 1970. Household size fell by 0.38 persons between 1970 and 1980, compared with a smaller decline of only 0.13 persons during the 1980's. The sizeable decline in household size during the 1970's is attributable to a variety of well-recognized trends including a sustained period of lower fertility resulting in fewer children per household, the increase in the number of one-parent families, and the increasing number of one-person nonfamily households. These trends have continued since 1980, but they have done so at a more moderate pace.

Although households were, on average, significantly smaller in 1992 than they were a decade or so ago, there has not been a significant change (up or down) in average household size since 1989. Historically, much of the decline in household size was due to the drop in the average number of younger household members. The average number of persons under age 18 dropped from 1.09 persons in 1970 to 0.69 persons in 1992, as births were postponed/deferred or as children grew older or "left the nest." This represents a decline of 0.40 persons under 18 during a period when overall household size fell by 0.52 persons. Thus, persons under 18 accounted for 77 percent of the decline in household size between 1970 and 1992.

In the four most recent March CPS surveys (1989 through 1992), the average number of persons under 18 per household has remained at a constant 0.69 persons (see appendix table A-1). This would suggest that the long-term decline in the number of children per family (i.e., persons under 18) may have "bottomed out." However, unless there is another major baby boom, an economic disaster, or a radical change in preferred living arrangements, household size is not likely to increase substantially during the remainder of this century.

AGE DISTRIBUTION OF HOUSEHOLDERS

Householders, by Census Bureau definition, must be at least 15 years of age. The median age of householders in 1992 was 45.7 years (table D). This average was 2.4 years lower than the corresponding figure for 1970, but was up slightly, by about 0.4 years, compared with the median age of householders in 1990.

The age distribution of householders is affected not only by changes in household composition but also by the dynamics of the adult population's age structure. The formation of households by members of the post-war Baby Boom (those born after World War II from 1946 to 1964) has had, and continues to have, a major impact on many things, including the age composition of householders.

During the 1970's, many members of the Baby Boom generation formed households as they moved through their twenties and into their early thirties. Their disproportionately large numbers contributed to the fact that the median age of householders in 1980 was 2 years lower than it had been in 1970 (46.1 versus 48.1 years).

During the 1980's, many persons born during the Baby Boom moved into their thirties and early forties.

Figures for 1970 include 14 year olds.

Once again, they helped to bring about an 0.8 year decline in the median age of householders, from 46.1 years in 1980 to 45.3 years in 1990.

By 1990, the members of the Baby Boom ranged from 26 to 44 years of age. As this disproportionately large segment of the population continues to grow older, the median age of householders would be expected to reverse its decline, and begin to increase. This may help account for the slight increase since 1990 in the median age of householders.

Since 1980, the number of households maintained by persons under 25 years of age has declined by 1.7 million (from 6.6 million to 4.9 million), or from 8 percent of all households in 1980 to 5 percent of all households in 1992. The smaller birth cohorts that followed the Baby Boom are part of the reason that the number and proportion of these younger householders has declined, but there is also evidence that the proportion of young adults forming households of their own may not be as high as it was in the past.³

At the opposite end of the householder age spectrum, the number of older householders age 75 years and over has risen from 6.4 million, or 8 percent of all households in 1980 to 8.9 million, or 9 percent of the total in 1992. Again, changes in the age structure of the population along with continued preference and ability to live independently have contributed to the increase in these older householders.

The number of householders age 35 to 44 years has increased by 7.8 million households since 1980. The 3.9 percent annual rate of increase for householders in this age category was higher than for any other age group during the 1980's. By 1992, this portion of the Baby Boom householders represented a sizeable 23 percent of all households.

RACE AND ETHNIC DIFFERENTIALS IN FAMILY COMPOSITION

In 1992, about 85 percent of all 67.2 million family households were maintained by White householders, 12 percent by Black householders, and 3 percent by householders of other races (primarily Asians and Pacific Islanders). About 8 percent of family households were maintained by Hispanics, an ethnic group whose members may classify themselves as White, Black, or some other racial category. In 1970, by comparison, about 90 percent of family households were maintained by Whites, 9 percent by Blacks, and only 1 percent were of some other race; while 4 percent were Hispanics. The families discussed in this and other sections of the report may or may not have any children present in the home. This should be obvious, but is sometimes misunderstood.

There are considerable race and ethnic differentials in the distribution of family types. About 82 percent of the 57.2 million White family households in 1992 were maintained by married couples, 4 percent by males with no wife present, and 14 percent by females with no husband present (table E). By contrast, only 47 percent of the 7.7 million Black family households were maintained by married couples, 7 percent were males with no wife present, and 46 percent had female householders with no husband present (about the same proportion as maintained by married couples).

There were about 1.6 million Asian and Pacific Islander family households in 1992. About 79 percent of these were married-couple families, a proportion significantly higher than that for Blacks, but only slightly lower than that for White families.

* Persons of Hispanic origin may be of any race. 1970 Hispanic data from 1970 Census of Population, Vol. II, 4A, Table 6.

Among the 5.2 million Hispanic family households in 1992, 68 percent were maintained by married couples (figure 4). This proportion was significantly lower than in 1970 when an estimated 81 percent of Hispanic families were maintained by married couples. Since Hispanics may be of any race, care should be exercised in making comparisons with the family composition of Whites, Blacks, and other races.

SINGLE PARENTS

One of the most significant changes in the composition of the American family has been the phenomenal rise in the number of single parents. The number of single-parent situations went from 3.8 million in 1970 to 10.5 million in 1992 (table F). During the same 22-year period, the proportion of all family groups with children under 18 accounted for by single parents rose from 13 percent to 30 percent.

Some of the 6.7 million increase in the number of single parents since 1970 (perhaps 10 to 15 percent) is attributable to technical improvements in survey data coding procedures which were introduced in the early 1980's. These refinements allowed better identification of certain types of single parents who may have been previously omitted from the count.⁴ Although the overall increase since 1970 has been dramatic, it is important to note that the number of single parents rose at a much higher rate from 1970 to 1980 than it has since that time.

Before discussing some of the characteristics of single parents, it is useful to clarify the terminology and concepts used in this section of the report. Although most single parents are family householders who own or rent their own independent housing unit, there are a significant number of single parents who for reasons, economic or otherwise, share a household belonging to someone else. To focus exclusively on family householders would overlook a significant number of single parents.

In order to encompass as many single-parent situations as possible, the Census Bureau uses the term or concept of "family groups." A family group may be any one of three distinct types of family units: a family household, a related subfamily, or an unrelated subfamily. The total of 10.5 million single parents in 1992 included 8.3 million single-parent families with their own household, plus 1.6 million related subfamilies maintained by single parents living in a home owned or rented by a relative, and about 0.6 million unrelated subfamilies comprised of single parents and their children residing in homes belonging to someone to whom they are not related (table G). The 2.2 million related and unrelated single-parent subfamilies combined represented about one of every five (21 percent) single parents in 1992.

The number of White single parents is more than twice as large as the number of Black single parents, but single-parent situations are much more prevalent among Blacks. In 1992, the 3.2 million Black single parents represented 62 percent of all Black family groups with children under 18 present in the home (figure 5). By comparison, the 6.9 million White single parents in 1992 accounted for 24 percent of all White family groups with children (a high, but comparatively much lower share than among Blacks). The corresponding single parent proportions in 1970 were 36 percent for Blacks and 10 percent for Whites.

Single parents accounted for about 34 percent of all one- and two-parent family groups maintained by Hispanics of all races in 1992. Comparable data for 1970 were not available, but the corresponding single parent proportion for Hispanics in 1980 was about 26 percent. The 1.3 million Hispanic single parents in 1992 comprised about 12 percent of all single parents, which was only slightly higher than the proportion of all family groups with children represented by Hispanics (11 percent).

The vast majority of single parents are mothers. In 1992, about 9.0 million, or 86 percent of all one-parent situations were single mothers (table H). Among Whites, about 83 percent of single parents were mothers, compared with 93 percent among Blacks. The overall single-mother proportion was even higher in 1970 and 1980 when it was 90 percent of the one-parent total. The fraction of single parents who were fathers has risen slightly from 10 percent in 1970 and 1980 to 14 percent in 1992.

About 81 percent of the 1.5 million single fathers in 1992 were White, 15 percent were Black, and 4 percent were in other racial categories. The share of all White single parents represented by fathers has increased from 12 percent in 1970 to 17 percent in 1992, whereas the corresponding proportion among Blacks was only 7 percent of the total at both points in time.

Most single parents are either divorced or have never been married, but one-parent situations may also be created by married persons not living with their spouses or by the death of a parent. Regardless of their marital status, persons may also become single parents through adoption or other actions and choices on the part of the parent (or parents) involved. In 1992, about 38 percent of single parents were divorced, 35 percent had never been married, 22 percent were married but not living with their spouse, and 5 percent were widowed. The corresponding proportions for single parents in 1980 were 44 percent divorced, 16 percent never married, 28 percent were married (spouse absent), and 12 percent were widowed.

It should perhaps be mentioned that some minority of family groups tabulated as single-parent situations may, in fact, have both biological parents present in the home. For example, if an unmarried mother and her infant maintain a home where the child's father is a resident (other than the householder), she will be counted as a single parent unless she eventually marries either the child's father or someone else.

RELATED REPORTS

Statistics on current marital status, age at first marriage, unmarried couples, persons living alone and the living arrangements of children and adults, are among the data presented in Current Population Reports, Series P20-468, Marital Status and Living Arrangements: March 1992, a report in which persons, rather than households, are the primary unit of analysis.

Estimates of the number and characteristics of households and families that continue, discontinue, and/or are newly formed over 1-year and 2-year periods are presented in Current Population Reports, Series P23-179, When Households Continue, Discontinue, and Form. The most up-to-date information on the recent marital history of the population may be found in Current Population Reports, Series P23-180, Marriage, Divorce, and Remarriage in the 1990's. A series of graphs and interpretive text illustrating important trends of the past several decades that have influenced household and family circumstances of all persons, with special emphasis on children is available in chartbook form in Current Population Reports, Series P23-181, Households, Families, and Children: A Thirty Year Perspective.

State household estimates were published in Current Population Reports, Series P25-1058, State Population and Household Estimates: July 1, 1989. County household estimates can be found in Current Population Reports, Series P23-156, Estimates of Households for Counties: July 1, 1985. Household projections are available in Current Population Reports, Series P25-986, Projections of the Numbers of Households and Families 1986 to 2000.

Additional survey based data for earlier years on households, families, and marital status have been published by the Bureau of the Census in Current Population Reports, Series P20, P23, and P25. See the complete listing of previous reports at the end of this publication.

For more complete subnational numbers, one must generally turn to census data rather than survey data. The detailed 1990 census statistics on households, families, and related subjects for metropolitan areas, counties, cities, towns, states, regions, and the United States are being issued in various publications based on 1990 Census of Population and Housing.

Appendix B. Definitions and Explanations

Coverage. The 1992 population in this report includes the civilian noninstitutional population of the United States plus approximately 841,000 members of the Armed Forces in the United States living off post or with their families on post, but excludes all other members of the Armed Forces.

Symbols. A dash (-) represents zero or rounds to zero. The symbol "B" means that the base for the derived figure is less than 75,000. An "X" means not applicable, and "NA" means not available.

Rounding of estimates. Individual figures are rounded to the nearest thousand without being adjusted to group totals, which are independently rounded; percentages are based on the unrounded numbers.

Metropolitan-nonmetropolitan residence. The population residing in metropolitan statistical areas (MSA's) constitutes the metropolitan population. MSA's are defined by the Office of Management and Budget for use in the presentation of statistics by agencies of the Federal Government. An MSA is a geographic area consisting of a large population nucleus, together with adjacent communities which have a high degree of economic and social integration with that nucleus. The definitions specify a boundary around each large city so as to include most or all its suburbs. Entire counties form the MSA building blocks, except in New England where cities and towns are used. The former term SMSA was changed to MSA in 1983.

An area qualifies for recognition as an MSA if (1) it includes a city of at least 50,000 population, or (2) it includes a Census Bureau-defined urbanized area of at least 50,000 with a total metropolitan population of at least 100,000 (75,000 in New England). In addition to the county containing the main city or urbanized area, an MSA may include other counties having strong commuting ties to the central county. If specified conditions are met, certain large MSA's are designated as consolidated MSA's (CMSA's) and divided into component primary MSA's (PMSA's).

In July 1985, the CPS began carrying the metropolitan statistical area definitions announced by the Office of Management and Budget on June 30, 1984. Figures published from the CPS in the early 1980's and throughout most of the 1970's referred to metropolitan areas as defined on the basis of the 1970 census. Since there are important differences in the population classified as metropolitan using the 1970 and 1984 definitions, comparisons should be avoided.

The new CPS metropolitan estimates have consistently been higher than independent estimates of the metropolitan population prepared by the Census Bureau; the new CPS nonmetropolitan estimates have been lower than the independent estimates. The apparent overestimation of metropolitan and underestimation of nonmetropolitan population in the CPS relative to the Census Bureau's independent estimates should be taken into account when using the data.

Age. The age classification is based on the age of the person at the person's last birthday. The adult universe (i.e., population of marriageable age) now comprises persons 15 years old and over. Prior to 1980 the adult universe was 14 years old and over.

Race. The population is divided into three groups on the basis of race: White, Black, and other races. The last category includes Indians, Japanese, Chinese, and any other race except White and Black.

Persons of Hispanic origin. Persons of Hispanic origin in this report were determined on the basis of a question that asked for self-identification of the person's origin or descent. Respondents were asked to select their origin (or the origin of some other household member) from a "flash card" listing ethnic origins. Persons of Hispanic origin, in particular, were those who indicated that their origin was Mexican, Puerto Rican, Cuban, Central or South American, or some other Hispanic origin. Persons of Hispanic origin may be of any race.

Marital status. The marital status classification identifies four major categories: never married, married, widowed, and divorced. These terms refer to the marital status at the time of the enumeration.

The category "married" is further divided into "married, spouse present," "separated," and "other married, spouse absent." A person was classified as "married, spouse present" if the husband or wife was reported as a member of the household, even though he or she may have been temporarily absent on business or on vacation, visiting, in a hospital, etc., at the time of the enumeration. Persons reported as separated included those with legal separations, those living apart with intentions of obtaining a divorce, and other persons permanently or temporarily separated because of marital discord. The group "other married, spouse absent" includes married persons living apart because either the husband or wife was employed and living at a considerable distance from home, was serving away from home in the Armed Forces, had moved to another area, or had a different place of residence for any other reason except separation as defined above.

Household. A household consists of all the persons who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall.

A household includes the related family members and all the unrelated persons, if any, such as lodgers, foster children, wards, or employees who share the housing unit. A person living alone in a housing unit, or a group of unrelated persons sharing a housing unit as partners, is also counted as a household. The count of households excludes group quarters.

Group quarters. As of 1983, group quarters were defined in the Current Population Survey as noninstitutional living arrangements for groups not living in conventional housing units or groups living in housing units containing ten or more unrelated persons or nine or more persons unrelated to the person in charge. (Prior to 1983, group quarters included housing units containing five or more persons unrelated to the person in charge.) Examples of persons in group quarters include a person residing in a rooming house, in staff quarters at a hospital, or in a halfway house. Beginning in 1972, inmates of institutions have not been included in the Current Population Survey.

Householder. The householder refers to the person (or one of the persons) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded.

Prior to 1980, the husband was always considered the householder in married-couple households. The number of householders is equal to the number of households. Also, the number of family householders is equal to the number of families.

Head versus householder. Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. Recent social changes have resulted in greater sharing of household responsibilities among the adult members and, therefore, have made the term "head" increasingly inappropriate in the analysis of household and family data. Specifically, the Census Bureau has discontinued its longtime practice of always classifying the husband as the reference person (head) when he and his wife are living together.

In this report, the term "householder" is used in the presentation of data that had previously been presented with the designation "head." The householder is the first adult household member listed on the questionnaire. The instructions call for listing first the person (or one of the persons) in whose name the home is owned or rented. If a home is owned jointly by a married couple, either the husband or the wife may be listed first, thereby becoming the reference person, or householder, to whom the relationship of other household members is to be recorded.

Reference person. The reference person is the person with regard to whom the relationship of other persons in the household is recorded. The household reference person is the person listed as the householder (see definition of "Householder"). The subfamily reference person is either the single parent or the husband/wife in a married-couple situation.

Family. A family is a group of two persons or more (one of whom is the householder) related by birth, marriage, or adoption and residing together; all such persons (including related subfamily members) are considered as members of one family. Beginning with the 1980 CPS, unrelated subfamilies (referred to in the past as secondary families) are no longer included in the count of families, nor are the members of unrelated subfamilies included in the count of family members.

Family household. A family household is a household maintained by a family (as defined above), and any unrelated persons (unrelated subfamily members and/or secondary individuals) who may be residing there are included. The number of family households is equal to the number of families. The count of family household members differs from the count of family members, however, in that the family household members include all persons living in the household, whereas family members include only the householder and his/her relatives. See the definition of family.

Stepfamily. In this report a stepfamily is a married-couple family household with at least one child under age 18 who is a stepchild (i.e., a son or daughter through marriage, but not by birth) of the householder.

Related subfamily. A related subfamily is a married couple with or without children, or one parent with one or more own never-married children under 18 years old, living in a household and related to, but not including, the person or couple who maintains the household. One example of a related subfamily is a young married couple sharing the home of the husband's or wife's parents. The number of related subfamilies is not included in the count of families.

Unrelated subfamily. An unrelated subfamily (formerly called a secondary family) is a married couple with or without children, or a single parent with one or more own never-married children under 18 years old living in a household. Unrelated subfamily members are not related to the householder. An unrelated subfamily may include persons such as guests, partners, roommates, or resident employees and their spouses and/or children. The number of unrelated subfamily members is included in the total number of household members, but is not included in the count of family members.

Beginning in 1989, any person(s) who is not related to the householder and who is not the husband, wife, parent, or child in an unrelated subfamily is counted as an unrelated individual.

Family group. A family group is any two or more persons (not necessarily including a householder) residing together, and related by birth, marriage, or adoption. A household may be composed of one such group, more than one, or none at all. The count of family groups includes family households, related subfamilies, and unrelated subfamilies.

Married couple. A married couple, as defined for census purposes, is a husband and wife enumerated as members of the same household. The married couple may or may not have children living with them. The expression "husband-wife" or "married-couple" before the term "household," "family," or "subfamily" indicates that the household, family, or subfamily is maintained by a husband and wife. The number of married couples equals the count of married-couple families plus related and unrelated married-couple subfamilies.

Unmarried couple. An unmarried couple is composed of two unrelated adults of the opposite sex (one of whom is the householder) who share a housing unit with or without the presence of children under 15 years old.

Unrelated individuals. Unrelated individuals are persons of any age who are not members of families or subfamilies.

Nonfamily householder. A nonfamily householder is a person maintaining a household while living alone or exclusively with persons to whom they are not related.

Secondary individuals. Secondary individuals are persons of any age who reside in a household, but are not related to the householder (except unrelated subfamily members). Persons who reside in group quarters are also secondary individuals. Examples of a secondary individual include (1) a guest, partner, roommate, or resident employee; (2) a foster child; or (3) a person residing in a rooming house, a halfway house, staff quarters at a hospital, or other type of group quarters.

Own children and related children. "Own" children in a family are sons and daughters, including stepchildren and adopted children, of the householder. Similarly, "own" children in a subfamily are sons and daughters of the married couple or parent in the subfamily. (All children shown as members of related subfamilies are own children of the person(s) maintaining the subfamily.) "Related" children in a family include own children and all other children in the household who are related to the householder by birth, marriage, or adoption. For each type of family unit identified in the CPS, the count of own children under 18 years old is limited to never-married children; however, "own children under 25" and "own children of any age," as the terms are used here, include all children regardless of marital status. The totals include never-married children living away from home in college dormitories.

The count of related children in families was formerly restricted to never-married children. However, beginning with data for 1968 the Bureau of the Census includes ever-married children under the category of related children. This change added approximately 20,000 children to the category of related children in March 1968.

Tenure. A housing unit is "owned" if the owner or co-owner lives in the unit, even if it is mortgaged or not fully paid for. A cooperative or condominium unit is "owned only if the owner or co-owner lives in it. All other occupied units are classified as "rented," including units rented for cash rent and those occupied without payment of cash rent.

Size of household, family, or subfamily. The term "size of household" includes all persons occupying a housing unit. "Size of family" includes the family householder and all other persons in the living quarters who are related to the householder by birth, marriage, or adoption. "Size of related subfamily" includes the husband and wife or the lone parent and their nevermarried sons and daughters under 18 years of age. "Size of unrelated subfamily" includes the reference person and all other members related to the reference person. If a family has a related subfamily among its members, the size of the family includes the members of the related subfamily.

Units in structure. In the determination of the number of units in a structure, all housing units, both occupied and vacant, were counted. The statistics are presented in terms of the number of occupied housing units in structures of specified size, not in terms of the number of residential structures.

Years of school completed. In this report, data on years of school completed were derived from the combination of answers to two questions, (a) "What is the highest grade of school that the person has attended?" and (b) "Did the person finish this grade?"

The questions on educational attainment applied only to progress in "regular" schooling. Such schools include public, private, and parochial schools (elementary, junior and senior high), colleges, universities, and professional schools, whether day schools or night schools. Thus, "regular" schools is that which advances a person toward an elementary or professional school degree. Schooling in other than regular schools was counted only if the credits obtained were regarded as transferable to a school in the regular school system.

Labor force and employment status. The definitions of labor force and employment status in this report are related to the population 15 years and over. Persons shown here are classified as in the labor force if they were employed as civilians, unemployed, or in the Armed Forces during the survey week.

Employed. Employed persons comprise (1) all persons who, during the specified week, did any work at all as paid employees or in their own business or profession, or on their own farm, or who worked 15 hours or more as unpaid workers on a farm or in a business operated by a member of the family, and (2) all those who were not working but who had jobs or businesses from which they were temporarily absent because of illness, bad weather, vacation, or labor management dispute, or because they were taking time off for personal reasons, whether or not they were paid by their employers for time off, and whether or not they were seeking other jobs. Excluded from the employed group are persons whose only activity consisted of work around the house (own home housework, painting or repairing own home, etc.) or volunteer work for religious, charitable, and similar organizations.

Unemployed. Unemployed persons are those who, during the survey week, had no employment but were available for work and (1) had engaged in any specific job-seeking activity within the past 4 weeks, such as registering at a public or private employment office, meeting with prospective employers, checking with friends or relatives, placing or answering advertisements, writing letters of application, or being on a union or professional register; (2) were waiting to be called back to a job from which they had been laid off; or (3) were waiting to report to a new wage or salary job within 30 days.

Not in the labor force. All those who are not classified as employed or unemployed are defined as "not in the labor force." This group who are neither employed nor seeking work includes persons engaged only in own home housework, attending school, or unable to work because of long-term physical or mental illness; persons who are retired or too old to work, seasonal workers for whom the survey week fell in an off season, and the voluntary idle. Persons doing only unpaid family work (less than 15 hours) are also classified as not in the labor force.

Income. Data on income cover money income only, prior to deduction for taxes, received from such sources as wages or salaries, net income from self-employment, Social Security, dividends, interest, public assistance and welfare, unemployment compensation, government pensions, and veterans payments. Certain money receipts such as capital gains are not included. For a more detailed explanation of income, see Bureau of the Census, Current Population Reports, Series P-60.

Poverty. The poverty definition used here is that adopted for official Government use by the Office of Management and Budget and consists of a set of money income thresholds that vary by family size and composition. Families or individuals with income below a particular threshold are classified as below the poverty level. The poverty thresholds are updated every year to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index. These thresholds are based on money income only and do not include the value of noncash benefits such as employer-provided health insurance, food stamps, or Medicaid. For a more detailed explanation, see Bureau of the Census, Current Population Reports, Series P-60.

Undocumented immigrants. The 1980 census counted about 2 million undocumented immigrants according to Census Bureau estimates. Beginning in January 1986, the independent population controls included an allowance for growth in the undocumented population for every year since 1980. This methodological change was partially offset by another change that increased the allowance for emigration of legal residents. Data shown for Current Population Surveys with controls based on pre-1986 methods have not been revised to take into account these methodological changes. Consequently, direct comparisons of CPS figures for months before January 1986 with later months will not be consistent. Series P-25, No. 985 reviews the postcensal population estimates methodology currently in use.

Appendix C. Source and Accuracy of Estimates

SOURCE OF DATA

Most estimates in this report come from data obtained in March of years 1970 through 1992 in the Current Population Survey (CPS). The Bureau of the Census conducts the survey every month, although this report uses mostly March data for its estimates. Also, some estimates come from 1970 and 1980 decennial census data. The March survey uses two sets of questions, the basic CPS and the supplement.

Basic CPS. The basic CPS collects primarily labor force data about the civilian noninstitutional population. Interviewers ask questions concerning labor force participation about each member 15 years old and over in every sample household.

The present CPS sample was selected from the 1980 Decennial Census files with coverage in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. The sample is continually updated to account for new residential construction. It is located in 729 areas comprising 1,973 counties, independent cities, and minor civil divisions. About 60,000 occupied households are eligible for interview every month. Interviewers are unable to obtain interviews at about 2,600 of these units because the occupants are not found at home after repeated calls or are unavailable for some other reason.

Since the introduction of the CPS, the Bureau of the Census has redesigned the CPS sample several times to improve the quality and reliability of the data and to satisfy changing data needs. The most recent changes were completely implemented in July 1985.

March Supplement. In addition to the basic CPS questions, interviewers asked supplementary questions in March about households, families, marital status, and living arrangements.

To obtain more reliable data for the Hispanic origin population, the March CPS sample was increased by about 2,500 eligible housing units, interviewed the previous November, that contained at least one sample person of Hispanic origin. In addition, the sample included persons in the Armed Forces living off post or with their families on post.

The following table summarizes changes in the CPS designs for the years for which data appear in this report.

²The CPS was redesigned following the 1980 Decennial Census of Population and Housing. During phase-in of the new design, housing units from the new and old designs were in the sample.

Estimation Procedure. This survey's estimation procedure inflates weighted sample results to independent estimates of the civilian noninstitutional population of the United States by age, sex, race and Hispanic/non-Hispanic categories. The independent estimates were based on statistics from decennial censuses of population; statistics on births, deaths, immigration and emigration; and statistics on the size of the Armed Forces. The independent population estimates used for 1980 to present were based on updates to controls established by the 1980 Decennial Census. Data previous to 1980 were based on independent population estimates from the most recent decennial census. For more details on the change in independent estimates, see the section entitled "Introduction of 1980 Census Population Controls" in an earlier report (Series P-60, No. 133). The estimation procedure for the March supplement included a further adjustment so that husband and wife in a household received the same weight.

The estimates in this report for 1984 and later also employ a revised survey weighting procedure for persons of Hispanic origin. In previous years, weighted sample results were inflated to independent estimates of the noninstitutional population by age, sex, and race. There was no specific control of the survey estimates for the Hispanic population. Since then, the Bureau of the Census developed independent population controls for the Hispanic population by sex and detailed age groups. Revised weighting procedures incorporate these new controls. The independent population estimates include some, but not all, undocumented immigrants.

ACCURACY OF THE ESTIMATES

Since the CPS estimates come from a sample, they may differ from figures from a complete census using the same questionnaires, instructions, and enumerators. A sample survey estimate has two possible types of error: nonsampling and sampling. The accuracy of an estimate depends on both types of error, but the full extent of the nonsampling error is unknown. Consequently, one should be particularly careful when interpreting results based on a relatively small number of cases or on small differences between estimates. The standard errors for CPS estimates primarily indicate the magnitude of sampling error. They also partially measure the effect of some nonsampling errors in responses and enumeration but do not measure systematic biases in the data. (Bias is the average over all possible samples of the differences between the sample estimates and the desired value.)

Nonsampling Variability. Nonsampling errors can be attributed to many sources. These sources include the inability to obtain information about all cases in the sample, definitional difficulties, differences in the interpretation of questions, respondents' inability or unwillingness to provide correct information or to recall information, errors made in data collection such as in recording or coding the data, errors made in processing the data, errors made in estimating values for missing data, and failure to represent all units with the sample (undercoverage).

CPS undercoverage results from missed housing units and missed persons within sample households. Compared to the level of the 1980 Decennial Census, overall CPS undercoverage is about 7 percent. CPS undercoverage varies with age, sex, and race. Generally, undercoverage is larger for males than for females and larger for Blacks and other races combined than for Whites. As described previously, ratio estimation to independent age-sex-race-Hispanic population controls partially corrects for the bias due to undercoverage. However, biases exist in the estimates to the extent that missed persons in missed households or missed persons in interviewed households have different characteristics from those of interviewed persons in the same age-sex-race-Hispanic group. Furthermore, the independent population controls have not been adjusted for undercoverage in the 1980 census.

For additional information on nonsampling error including the possible impact on CPS data when known, refer to Statistical Policy Working Paper 3, An Error Profile: Employment as Measured by the Current Population Survey, Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards, U.S. Department of Commerce, 1978 and Technical Paper 40, The Current Population Survey: Design and Methodology, Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

Comparability of Data. Data obtained from the CPS and other sources are not entirely comparable. This results from differences in interviewer training and experience and in differing survey processes. This is an example of nonsampling variability not reflected in the standard errors. Use caution when comparing results from different sources.

Caution should also be used when comparing estimates in this report, which reflect 1980 census-based population controls, with estimates for 1979 and earlier years, which reflect 1970 census-based population controls. This change in population controls had relatively little impact on summary measures such as means, medians, and percentage distributions, but did have a significant impact on levels. For example, use of 1980-based population controls results in about a 2-percent increase in the civilian noninstitutional population and in the number of families and households. Thus, estimates of levels for data collected in 1980 and later years will differ from those for earlier years by more than what could be attributed to actual changes in the population. These differences could be disproportionately greater for certain subpopulation groups than for the total population.

Since no independent population control totals for persons of Hispanic origin were used before 1984, compare Hispanic estimates over time cautiously.

Note When Using Small Estimates. Summary measures (such as medians and percentage distributions) are shown only when the base is 75,000 or greater. Because of the large standard errors involved, summary measures would probably not reveal useful information when computed on a smaller base. However, estimated numbers are shown even though the relative standard errors of these numbers are larger than those for corresponding percentages. These smaller estimates permit combinations of the categories to suit data users' needs. Take care in the interpretation of small differences. For instance, even a small amount of nonsampling error can cause a borderline difference to appear significant or not, thus distorting a seemingly valid hypothesis test.

Sampling Variability. Sampling variability is variation that occurred by chance because a sample was surveyed rather than the entire population. Standard errors, as calculated by methods described later in "Standard Errors and Their Use," are primarily measures of sampling variability, although they may include some nonsampling error.

Standard Errors and Their Use. A number of approximations are required to derive, at a moderate cost, standard errors applicable to all the estimates in this report. Instead of providing an individual standard error for each estimate, generalized sets of standard errors are provided for various types of characteristics. Thus, the tables show levels of magnitude of standard errors rather than the precise standard errors.

Tables C-1 and C-2 provide standard errors of estimated numbers and estimated percentages, respectively. Table C-3 has standard error parameters for persons, families, households, householders and unrelated individuals. Tables C-4 and C-5 provide factors to apply to the standard error parameters for estimates prior to 1992.

The sample estimate and its standard error enable one to construct a confidence interval, a range that would include the average result of all possible samples with a known probability. For example, if all possible samples were surveyed under essentially the same general conditions and using the same sample design, and if an estimate and its standard error were calculated from each sample, then approximately 90 percent of the intervals from 1.645 standard errors below the estimate to 1.645 standard errors above the estimate would include the average result of all possible samples.

A particular confidence interval may or may not contain the average estimate derived from all possible samples. However, one can say with specified confidence that the interval includes the average estimate calculated from all possible samples.

Some statements in the report may contain estimates followed by a number in parentheses. This number can be added to and subtracted from the estimate to calculate upper and lower bounds of the 90-percent confidence interval. For example, if a statement contains the phrase "grew by 1.7 percent (± 1.0)," the 90-percent confidence interval for the estimate, 1.7 percent, is 0.7 percent to 2.7 percent.

Standard errors may also be used to perform hypothesis testing, a procedure for distinguishing between population parameters using sample estimates. The most common type of hypothesis appearing in this report is that the population parameters are different. An example of this would be comparing the total number of family households in March 1990 to the total number of family households in March 1992.

Tests may be performed at various levels of significance, where a significance level is the probability of concluding that the characteristics are different when, in fact, they are the same. All statements of comparison in the text have passed a hypothesis test at the 0.10 level of significance or better. This means that the absolute value of the estimated difference between characteristics is greater than or equal to 1.645 times the standard error of the difference.

Standard Errors of Estimated Numbers. There are two ways to compute the approximate standard error, s_x , of an estimated number shown in this report. The first uses the formula where f is a factor from Table C-3, and s is the standard error of the estimate obtained by interpolation from Table C-1. The second method uses formula (2), from which the standard errors in Table C-1 were calculated. This formula will provide more accurate results than formula (1).

$$s_x = \sqrt{ax^2 + bx} \tag{2}$$

Note: See Table C-3 for the appropriate factor to apply to the above standard errors.

Here x is the size of the estimate and a and b are the parameters in Table C-3 associated with the particular type of characteristic. When calculating standard errors for numbers from cross-tabulations involving different characteristics, use the factor or set of parameters for the characteristic which will give the largest standard error.

Illustration. Table A shows that there were 95,669,000 households in 1992. Using formula (1) with $f = 1.0$ from Table C-3 and $s = 281,000$ interpolating from Table C-1, the approximate standard error of 95,669,000 is approximately

$$s_x = 1.0 \times 281,000 = 281,000$$

Alternatively, using formula (2) with $a = -0.000011$ and $b = 1,899$ from Table C-3, the approximate standard error of 95,669,000 is

$$s_x = \sqrt{-0.000011 \times 95,669,000^2 + 1,899 \times 95,669,000} = 285,000$$

The 90-percent confidence interval for the estimated number of households in 1992 is from 95,200,000 to 96,138,000, i.e., $95,669,000 \pm 1.645(285,000)$.

Standard Errors of Estimated Percentages. The reliability of an estimated percentage, computed using sample data for both numerator and denominator, depends on the size of the percentage and its base. Estimated percentages are relatively more reliable than the corresponding estimates of the numerators of the percentages, particularly if the percentages are 50 percent or more. When the numerator and denominator of the percentage are in different categories, use the factor or parameter from Table C-3 indicated by the numerator.

The approximate standard error, $s_{x,p}$, of an estimated percentage can be obtained by use of the formula

In this formula, f is the appropriate factor from Table C-3 and s is the standard error of the estimate obtained by interpolation from Table C-2.

Alternatively, formula (4) will provide more accurate results:

Here x is the total number of persons, families, households, or unrelated individuals which is the base of the percentage, p is the percentage ($0 \leq p \leq 100$), and b is the parameter in Table C-3 associated with the characteristic in the numerator of the percentage.

Illustration. Table A shows that of the 95,669,000 households in 1992, 52,457,000, or 54.8 percent were married-couple families. Using formula (3) with $f = 1.0$ from Table C-3 and $s = 0.2$ interpolating from Table C-2, the approximate standard error of 54.8 percent is

$$s_{x,p} = 1.0 \times 0.2 = 0.2$$

Alternatively, using formula (4) with $b = 1,899$ from Table C-3, the approximate standard error of 54.8 percent is

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{\frac{1,899}{95,669,000} (54.8) (100.0 - 54.8)} = 0.2$$

The 90-percent confidence interval for the estimated percentage of households in 1992 that were married-couple families is from 54.5 percent to 55.1 percent, i.e., $54.8 \pm 1.645(0.2)$.

Standard Error of a Difference. The standard error of the difference between two sample estimates is approximately equal to where s_x and s_y are the standard errors of the estimates, x and y . The estimates can be numbers, percentages, ratios, etc. This will represent the actual standard error quite accurately for the difference between estimates of the same characteristic in two different areas, or for the difference between separate and uncorrelated characteristics in the same area. However, if there is a high positive (negative) correlation between the two characteristics, the formula will overestimate (underestimate) the true standard error.

$$s_{x-y} = \sqrt{s_x^2 + s_y^2} \quad (5)$$

Illustration. Table A shows that 70.2 percent of the 95,669,000 households in 1992 were family households, whereas, 73.7 percent of the 80,776,000 households in 1980 were family households. The apparent difference between these percentages is 3.5 percent.

Using $b = 1,899$ from Table C-3 and formula (4), the standard error on the estimate of 70.2 percent with a base of 95,669,000 is

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{\frac{1,899}{95,669,000} (70.2) (100.0 - 70.2)} = 0.2$$

Similarly, the standard error on the estimate of 73.7 percent with a base of 80,776,000 and $b = 1,595$ is

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{\frac{1,595}{80,776,000} (73.7) (100.0 - 73.7)} = 0.2$$

Using formula (5), the approximate standard error of the estimated difference of 3.5 percent is

$$s_{x-y} = \sqrt{0.2^2 + 0.2^2} = 0.3$$

The 90-percent confidence interval for the estimated difference between the percentage of households which were family households in 1992 and 1980 is from 3.0 to 4.0 percent, i.e., $3.5 \pm 1.645(0.3)$. Because this interval does not contain zero, we can conclude with 90-percent confidence that the percentage of households which are family households has decreased between 1980 and 1992.

Standard Error of a Median. The sampling variability of an estimated median depends on the form of the distribution and the size of the base. One can approximate the reliability of an estimated median by determining a confidence interval about it. (See the section "Standard Errors and Their Use" for a general discussion of confidence intervals.)

Estimate the 68-percent confidence limits of a median based on sample data using the following procedure.

1. Determine, using formula (4), the standard error of the estimate of 50 percent from the distribution.
2. Add to and subtract from 50 percent the standard error determined in step 1.
3. Using the distribution of the characteristic, determine upper and lower limits of the 68-percent confidence interval by calculating values corresponding to the two points established in step 2. Use the following formula to calculate the upper and lower limits.

$$X_{pN} = \frac{pN - N_1}{N_2 - N_1} (A_2 - A_1) + A_1 \quad (6)$$ where X_{pN} = estimated upper and lower bounds for the confidence interval ($0 \leq p \leq 1$). For purposes of calculating the confidence interval, p takes on the values determined in step 2. Note that X_{pN} estimates the median when $p = 0.50$.

- N = for distribution of numbers: the total number of units (persons, households, etc.) for the characteristic in the distribution.
 = for distribution of percentages: the value 1.0.
 p = the values obtained in step 2.
 A_1, A_2 = the lower and upper bounds, respectively, of the interval containing X_{pN} .

N_1, N_2 = for distribution of numbers: the estimated number of units (persons, households, etc.) with values of the characteristic greater than or equal to A_1 and A_2 , respectively.
 = for distribution of percentages: the estimated percentage of units (persons, households, etc.) having values of the characteristic greater than or equal to A_1 and A_2 , respectively.

4. Divide the difference between the two points determined in step 3 by two to obtain the standard error of the median.

Use of the above procedure could result in standard errors which differ from those given in the detailed tables. The reasons for this discrepancy are the use of a more detailed distribution than that given in the tables in determining the published standard errors, and the rounding of the numbers to thousands in the published tables.

Illustration. Table D shows that the estimated median age of all householders was 45.7 in 1992. Table D also shows that the size, or base, of the distribution from which this median was determined was 95,669,000 householders.

1. Using formula (4) with $b = 1,899$ from Table C-3, the standard error of 50 percent on a base of 95,669,000 is

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{\frac{1,899}{95,669,000} (50.0) (100.0 - 50.0)} = 0.2$$

2. To obtain a 68-percent confidence interval on the estimated median, add to and subtract from 50 percent the standard error found in step 1. This yields percentage limits of 49.8 and 50.2.

Notes: To obtain parameters prior to 1992, multiply by the appropriate factors in Tables C-4 and C-5. For regional estimates multiply the a and b parameters by 0.74, 0.98, 1.04, and 1.06 for Northeast, Midwest, South, and West, respectively. The a and b parameters should be multiplied by 1.5 for nonmetropolitan residence categories and 1.9 for farm categories.

3. Table D also shows that 49,028,000 householders were 45 years of age or older and 33,481,000 were 55 or older. Using formula (6), the lower limit for the confidence interval of the median is:

$$\frac{0.502 \times 95,669,000 - 49,028,000}{33,481,000 - 49,028,000} (55 - 45) + 45 = 45.6$$

Similarly, the upper limit can be computed as

$$\frac{0.498 \times 95,669,000 - 49,028,000}{33,481,000 - 49,028,000} (55 - 45) + 45 = 45.9$$

Thus, a 68-percent confidence interval for the median age of all householders is from 45.6 to 45.9.

4. Therefore, the standard error of the median is

$$s_{\text{median}} = \frac{45.9 - 45.6}{2} = 0.2$$

Standard Error of a Ratio. Certain estimates may be calculated as the ratio of two numbers. The standard error of a ratio, x/y , may be computed using

The standard error of the numerator, s_x , and that of the denominator, s_y , may be calculated using formula (2). Alternatively, use formula (1) and Table C-3. In formula (7), r represents the correlation between the numerator and the denominator of the estimate.

For one type of ratio, the denominator is a count of families or households and the numerator is a count of persons in those families or households with a certain characteristic. If there is at least one person with the characteristic in every family or household, use 0.7 as an estimate of r . An example of this type is the mean number of children per family with children.

For all other types of ratios, r is assumed to be zero. If r is actually positive (negative), then this procedure will provide an overestimate (underestimate) of the standard error of the ratio. Examples of this type are the mean number of children per family and the poverty rate for families.

NOTE: For estimates expressed as the ratio of x per 100 y or x per 1,000 y , multiply formula (7) by 100 or 1,000, respectively, to obtain the standard error.

Illustration. Table B shows the total population in nonfamily households, x , was 34,930,000 and the total number of nonfamily households, y , was 28,496,000 in 1992. The average number of persons per nonfamily household is 1.23. The standard error of 1.23 is calculated by using the following steps:

1. Compute s_x and s_y using formula (2).

$$s_x = \sqrt{-0.000033 \times 34,930,000^2 + 5,815 \times 34,930,000} = 404,000$$

$$s_y = \sqrt{-0.000011 \times 28,496,000^2 + 1,899 \times 28,496,000} = 213,000$$

2. Compute $(s_x/x)^2 = 0.000134$.
3. Compute $(s_y/y)^2 = 0.000056$.
4. Compute $\left(\frac{s_x s_y}{xy}\right) = 0.000086$
5. Using formula (7), the estimate of the standard error is

$$s_{x/y} = 1.23 \sqrt{0.000134 + 0.000056 + 2 \times 0.7 \times 0.000086} = 0.02$$

The 90-percent confidence interval for the average number of persons per nonfamily household is from 1.20 to 1.26, i.e., $1.23 \pm 1.645(0.02)$.
