

Considerations for Online Testing for Research at Federal Agencies

FedCASIC Workshops

April 16, 2019

Session 2B

What do we talk about when we talk about online testing?

Topics We'll Cover in the Session

- How long does it take?
- How much does it cost?
- Are the data any good?

And also...

- What kind of research questions are appropriate?
- Should I use a probability panel or a non-probability panel?

Session Format

- Presentations from the panelists
- Q&A

While listening to the panelists, think about your own research and what projects you are considering using online testing for.

Ask us to help you think it through!

Panelists

- Researcher using non-probability panels
Robin Kaplan, BLS
- Researcher using probability panels
Paul Scanlon, NCHS
- Policy considerations
Aleia Fobia, Census
- OMB perspective
Bob Sivinski, OMB
